

- Latest news
- Forum chat
- Subscriptions
- Back issues
- 911 Facebook
- 911 blog
- Twitter feed

Porsche TV

A recently launched Porsche website allows you to share videos online – a sort of YouTube for Porsche enthusiasts, if you like.

Channel P101 is free to join and use. It lets you view and upload videos, images and audio files, and even create your own Porsche blog. www.p101tv.com

It's in the detail

Car cleaning has become a fine art but few of us do it as well as we could do. Which is why car care manufacturers Meguiar's has produced a free booklet to help you to wash, polish and detail your car to show standards.

You can obtain a copy by contacting Meguiar's on 0870 241 6696, or you can download a PDF file from the website. www.meguiars.co.uk

Give your GT3 a facelift

If you drive a 997 GT3 or GT3 RS you'll know the problems with ground clearance when negotiating speed bumps and driveways. It's easy to end up with a damaged lip spoiler and replacements aren't cheap.

Now, TechArt has updated its Noselift system to be used on the latest models.

Once the system is fitted, a button on the overhead console allows you to raise the front of the car by a full 60mm in just six seconds, to give near-Cayenne-like clearance (well, almost). And, if you forget to cancel it, the suspension drops back to the normal height once you hit 37mph.

www.techart.de

Porsche aid

Kevin Yeung (in the black suit) shakes hands with Porsche's Leo Tam

Porsche supplied Cayennes to help rebuild schools torn apart by the Chinese Wenchuan earthquake in 2008. Hong Kong-based 911 owner Kevin Yeung (whose 964 Speedster was used as the basis of the Sparks model featured in this issue), works for UNICEF and reached out to his contacts at Porsche China for help putting things right.

"Helmut Broeker, Porsche's chief executive officer for China, responded by providing four bespoke Porsche Cayennes to UNICEF to serve as mobile educational training and resource units," explains

Kevin. "These special Cayennes have been in active duty since 2009 to provide educational support and to transport tutors to some 500 schools in the most remote mountainous areas affected by the earthquake."

In addition, Porsche AG has committed US$1.5 million over three years to support the new Empowering the Future Children's educational programme with UNICEF.

Kevin was so delighted, he's promised personally to sponsor the Porsche running team for the 2010 UNICEF charity run.

www.unicef.org

Total extra

Binders

Keep your copy of Total 911 in a smart binder in black with silver. Fits both the size magazine.

eMag

The first 50 issues of Total 911 are searchable, brilliant and designed to keep the issues accessible and access to back issues quickly. Also available in print.

Digital

You can now view Total 911 on the iPad and iPod touch.

Bookazine

Total 911: Celebrate the Legend is the most glorious 212-page bookazine yet. Even if you don't read every issue, it's a great addition to your Porsche library.

Forum

Chat about Total 911, Porsches and anything else you want to discuss with our readers and us.

Blog

For the latest news and product features, go to our homepage or subscribe to our RSS feed.

Holidays

Bring your Porsche on holiday with Total 911. This year we've got the Swiss Alps and the Isle of Man.

Twitter and Facebook

Editor Philip Roberts tweets on Porsche's Facebook universe and posts in-between posts on Total 911 Facebook.